NEW CONCENTRATION

PSYCHOLOGY

Clinical Psychology

Students interested in pursuing a career in clinical psychology or human services through graduate study are encouraged to select this area of concentration.

Major Requirements:

Thirty-eight semesters hours in psychology including: Psychology 101, 214, 290, 291, 340, 317, 318. One course from the following: PSYC 212, 215, 220, 225. Six hours of psychology electives. Two hours of service learning experiences in clinical settings, and four hours of internship at a departmental approved clinical site.

New Courses:

PSYC 317 Clinical Psychology I

This course is an introduction to the field of clinical psychology, relevant theorists, and schools of psychotherapy. Practical interviewing skills will be demonstrated and students will develop skills through role playing exercises. Report writing based upon observation, inference and interviews will be included.

Prerequisite: PSYC 214

PSYC 318 Clinical Psychology II

This course will continue the development of interviewing skills. Through the use of clinical case studies students will develop the ability to write clinical reports that reflect knowledge of the theory and practice of counseling and psychotherapy and the integration of diagnostic and assessment information. Prerequisites: PSYC 317 and 340

NEW MINOR

Social Justice and Civic Engagement

This program (SJCE) allows students to deepen their civic engagement and service to the community while studying emerging research in this field and the field of social justice. It provides a forum for students to deepen their pursuit of the mission of Dominican University through study, compassionate service, the pursuit of truth and the creation of a more just and humane world. Students will be introduced to the study of service, service leadership, social justice, public ethics, civic engagement, human rights, social change and global pursuit of the common good. SJCE provides a capstone experience for students to deepen this study through community-based research. In addition, it allows students to analyze and reflect on issues of social justice and injustice as they are experienced in the local community, as well as in the global community, and to develop an ethically responsible personal and cultural stance through significant reflection opportunities in connection with ongoing service learning.

The program benefits students who have a passion for social justice, who want to make a difference or are interested in deepening their engagement in the community, who are interested in pursuing social work, law, education, or ministry, who are interested in global concerns, international relations, human rights, or who wish to become leaders, entrepreneurs, social workers, or community organizers.

Minor Requirements:

Twenty-one semester hours including SJCE 210 and 410. Completion of at least 100 clock hours of service with approved community agency partners. 15 semester hours through a combination of service learning courses and related social justice/civic engagement courses as follows: Six – nine hours required in service learning courses (designated by a section #70); 299 service learning intensive (adding one unit to a non-service learning course). It is recommended that one of these service learning courses be in the student’s major field of study. Six – nine hours required in related social justice/civic engagement courses in the general curriculum selected in consultation with the Program Director. A minimum of 15 hours in the minor must be completed at Dominican.

Courses

SJCE 210 Introduction to Social Justice and Civic Engagement (3)

This introductory course affords students the opportunity to engage in the study and praxis of civic engagement, community service and leadership locally, nationally or internationally while investigating the concept of “the common good.” The following topics will be explored: social justice, human rights, civic engagement, community service, compassion, public ethics, social change and responsible leadership. Includes off-campus service hours.

SJCE 410 Social Justice and Civic Engagement Capstone (3)

The SJCE capstone course provides students with the opportunity to analyze and study issues of social justice and injustice as they are experienced in the local community through a community-based research (CBR) project. Working with faculty mentors and community leaders, students will develop a research project, collect and analyze data, and share their results and conclusions with the organizations and agencies that need the information, as well as present their research at the Undergraduate Research and Creative Investigations Annual Exposition (URCI.) Includes off-campus service hours. Prerequisite: SJCE 210 and consent of instructor.

Costs—2009-2010 Academic Year

Tuition covers only a portion of the total cost of study at Dominican University. The donations of alumnae/i, foundations, corporations and other friends of the university help to limit the expenses charged to students while maintaining a high-quality educational program.

Each application should include the $25 non-refundable application fee.

Students who are accepted and plan to attend must make a $100 tuition deposit, which can be refunded up until May 1 for the fall semester and until November 1 for the spring semester.
